It's Teacher Appreciation Week and we're celebrating our partnership with the College of Coastal Georgia! Professors and students from the local college have provided invaluable help with research and data gathering enhancing the management of Cannon's Point Preserve.

Over the past year, Dr. Amy Sneed, Assistant Professor of Middle Grades and Secondary Education, and her students, through the college's service-learning initiative, developed lesson modules that focus on the ecology of Cannon's Point Preserve. Recently, the students presented their work to members of Land Trust staff and CPP's Education Task Force, who provided feedback and suggestions on the curriculum. Once the modules are fully approved, they can be used by middle grade science teachers from across coastal Georgia to enhance the learning experience of both students and teachers. We are incredibly grateful to the College of Coastal Georgia for their partnership, the CPP Education Task Force for its guidance and knowledge, and to the Terry Thomas Foundation for making educational initiatives like this possible.
