CCGA will host Symposium Monday

The event is free and open to the public. It will take place from 3:30-5 p.m. at the Southeast Georgia Conference Center on CCGA's campus.

The symposium will celebrate and reflect upon the collaborative efforts of students, faculty and community partners throughout this past school year.

The event will include a poster showcase, a community partner exposition and an awards ceremony, honoring excellence in service-learning.

At the showcase and exposition, students and community partners will present their work and reflect on service-learning's influence on student learning, faculty teaching and the local community.
